"We used to deliver 200%+ annual returns. Here's why we don't anymore."

Transparency moment:

Our first 22 months delivered 214% CAGR. That's exceptional. It's also not sustainable.

Here's what changed:

- AUM growth (execution constraints)
- Market regime shifts (gold volatility normalized)
- Risk prioritization (capital preservation > peak returns)

Our target going forward: 30-40% annually.

Why are we telling you this?

Because sophisticated investors deserve honest expectations, not marketing hype.

"Your hedge fund had a -23% month. Ours? -0.49%."

Maximum drawdown in 22 months: 6.11%

Worst single month: -0.49% (September 2025)

How we protect capital:

- Intraday systematic exits (no overnight risk)
- Multi-layer risk controls (position sizing + volatility limits)
- 2-3 hour average holding period (limits exposure)

95.45% monthly win rate isn't luck.

It's disciplined risk management.

How we kept drawdown under 7% (even in September 2025)

From: [PM Name] <pm@renouveaucapital.com>

Hi [Name],

September 2025 was our worst month: -0.49%.

Here's what happened:

- Gold volatility collapsed (our primary market)
- Our system reduced position sizes automatically
- We took 47 trades vs. usual 55-60
- Win rate dropped to 42% (vs. average 45%)

Result: -0.49% drawdown instead of potential -8-12%.

This is what systematic risk management looks like.

Why we tell investors about our -0.49% month

From: [PM Name] <pm@renouveaucapital.com>

Hi [Name],

Most funds hide losses. We highlight them.

Here's why:

1. Transparency builds trust (you deserve honest expectations)
2. Risk management matters more than peak returns
3. Drawdowns are inevitable (how we handle them isn't)

Our worst month: -0.49%

Our max drawdown (22 months): 6.11%

Compare that to your current allocations.
